Internet platform

I am developing an internet platform that provides a service for social groups. However, the turnover will not be achieved by the Internet presence but by the publication of books. I am looking for equity capital to finance advertising. Actually, I don't need it, but then the build-up will take a few years longer. The project is very easily internationalized. Only one person who is concerned about improved democratic conditions is eligible as a partner. The project could be described as idealistic, but the economic potential is also considerable.
