Plant construction hydroelectric power plants

Successor sought in plant construction: Water turbines and small hydropower plants You are already established in plant construction and are thinking of a supplement to round off your portfolio? Or are you looking for a new challenge as an entrepreneur and have appropriate equity?

Then please read on: The German-based company serves a niche market of up to 1 MW of power and supplies everything from a single source besides the building.

Barriers to entry into this market are high, as they are mostly long-term planning. Here, the company scores with excellent job potential.

A very high number of in-house developments in turbine construction and the variety of flexible design options ensure a wide range of applications.
