Dear advertiser, dear advertiser, you have been trying to sell your company for quite some time, but have not yet found a solvent prospective customer. Unfortunately, this is not uncommon. A proper liquidation could cost—depending on the industry—a high 6-digit amount, the possibly would severely diminish their private reserves for old age.

Have you ever thought about continuing your life's work under the direction of an employed managing director? This concept offers exceptional advantages: 1. Your company would remain.

2. There would be no incalculable liquidation.

3. Your staff would not need to worry about the future.

4. Customers, suppliers and other business partners would also be satisfied.

5. Your principles and company philosophy would remain.

I could offer you that perspective in the short term.
