For more than 30 years, the small company has been manufacturing components for air and heat technology. On behalf of planning offices and plant builders, the elements are manufactured according to individual needs. In this way, the company fills an interesting gap between the large manufacturers of standardized units. End customers are large companies such as Audi, Siemens or Lidl.

The very profitable company employs only six people. Its location is a small municipality south of Stuttgart.

The owner is available for a period of time, depending on your wishes. A takeover can take place in a timely manner.
