Mechanical engineering companies

Our client runs a traditional company from the mechanical engineering industry. The company develops, manufactures and sells production facilities and machines for the ceramicprocessing industry in a real niche segment. The company's machines and systems are used, for example, in the porcelain and sanitary equipment industries as well as in roof tiles, tile and tire production. The know-how of our client is also appreciated in the production of complex metal castings and plaster moulds. The mixing and dosing systems for mineral substances, which are based on a globally established process, secure a good market position, which is now to be expanded.

Within the last few decades, the innovative company has been able to attract well-known national and international companies as customers through several unique selling points.
