Digital trade fair

Virtual trade fairs – also referred to as web trade fairs, online trade fairs or digital trade fairs – are digital events at which numerous exhibitors present themselves and take advantage of the decisive advantage of being able to act regardless of location.

A digital trade fair is an exhibition, but it does not take place in a specific location, as is the case with commercial trade fairs. Instead, the virtual trade fairs, also known as web trade fairs, take place on special online platforms. The interaction between the participants and exhibitors therefore takes place in a different way than at classic trade fairs. However, this is precisely what makes digital trade fairs extremely interesting.

We are specialists in digital trade fairs and are already running a number of successful reference projects. Since we have the largest portfolio of descriptive trade fair domains in Germany, we are looking for interested investors who would like to invest in such a digital trade fair.
