We are looking for you as a licensee with territorial protection if you share with us the vision of exclusively ecologically built houses and living suitable for great-grandchildren under an existing brand and can professionally build and market our houses in a client-oriented manner. There is no comparable system in Germany. Join our start-up with straw-insulated modular houses.

The houses, which have already been tried and tested for many years, are healthy to live in: by using 90% renewable raw materials such as wood and straw, they benefit from a pleasant indoor climate. The buildings must be climate-neutral in construction and operation and in modular construction. They generate more energy than you need for water, heating and household.

Straw bales are the insulation material of the future. This is because straw grows back abundantly every year, costs hardly any energy to produce and insulates excellently. This keeps heating costs low and protects the climate.
