The website presents a specialised range of orthopaedic sleeping places for dogs that are geared towards promoting health and well-being. The focus is on products made of pure medical visco foam, which was originally developed for space travel and is now used in human medicine. This foam adapts precisely to the contours of the body, reduces pressure points and supports blood circulation, which is particularly advantageous for dogs with joint problems or at an advanced age.

The product range includes dog beds, mats and pillows in various designs and sizes, which are manufactured in Germany. Special emphasis is placed on sustainability: all components are individually replaceable, which increases the longevity of the products. In addition, the materials used are tested for harmful substances and meet high hygienic standards, which also makes them suitable for allergic dogs.
