Grocery

The company offers new gluten-free pasta varieties made from legumes such as lentils, chickpeas, and other alternative ingredients. In addition to being gluten-free, this pasta is high in protein and low in carbohydrates, making it particularly appealing to the growing functional food and healthy eating market. All products are produced in Germany and are geared towards a conscious diet. In the area of services, the company focuses on performance-based sales, which is organized through 7 agencies with external sales representatives. These employees make about 500 market visits a day to place the products and maintain customer relationships. In addition, the business is supported by its own software, which enables efficient, decentralized control and management.
