Watch service

The subject is the planned operational handover of an established watch service in a highly frequented location in .

The company is fully operational, not dependent on the owner and has a well-rehearsed, independently working team.

The handover is for reasons of age and does not constitute an emergency sale or restructuring case.

The aim is the structured handover of an ongoing business including processes, customer base, equipment and official service authorizations.

The team consists of three long-standing employees with clearly distributed areas of responsibility. The employees work independently within defined processes.

The company has official service authorizations, including for brands of the Swatch Group and Breitling.

These authorizations represent a significant barrier to entry and are an integral part of business operations.
